DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 45-50,53,55-57,59,60,62 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by Yamamoto. Note insulative wall 4 in the figure, which separates the capacitor into two compartments in which different electrolytes can be used. See column 2, lines 28-33.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 51 and 52 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Yamamoto. The claims call for an insulative coating on the casing and a third stack of elements. Use of a third stack is merely a process of duplication and the artisan would have found it obvious to use a third stack , such choice dependent on the desired electrical power requirements of the capacitor. Use of an insulative coating is; very conventional and is likewise considered an obvious modification dependent on the end use of the device.

Claim 54 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Yamamoto in view of Inagawa et al.

Yamamoto teaches the claimed structure except for showing vertical stacking of the elements. Inagawa et al show the same as conventional and in view of this teaching it would have been obvious to modify Yamamoto with the same , the stacking orientation being a design parameter dependent on the shape and size of the device required.

Claims 58 and 61 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Yamamoto in view of Yoshida. Yamamoto teaches the claimed device except for showing the casing acting as a conductor between capacitive stacks. However, as set forth in Yoshida such design is conventional and in view of this teaching it would have been obvious to modify the Yamamoto system with the same , such modification providing more versatility in the placement of the electrodes. See abstract in Yoshida.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Alndelman and Farahmandi et al are cited for disclosing pertinent capacitor structures.
